

News from Danish Water Forum December 2008

Danish Water Forum wishes all members, friends and partners a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We thank you all for good co-operation throughout the year and look forward to many new and interesting activities in the coming year.

We are now looking towards two events of major significance for international water issues in 2009. First the World Water Forum in Istanbul, where Danish Water Forum will participate with a booth in the exhibition. On January 8-9th Danish Water Forum is co-hosting a Nordic, regional meeting providing input from our region to the debates in Istanbul. And then in about a year from now we will have the COP 15 in Copenhagen in December 2009. We wish to contribute to placing the links between water and climate change high on the agenda towards COP15. You will be able to read more about this during the year on www.danishwaterforum.dk

Right ahead of us in 2009 we also have the Annual Meeting of the Research Platform Water 28th of January and a Pre-meeting on Water and Climate Change on January the 29th, where i.a. setting up a working group on water and climate change will be discussed including options for international participation in the working group.
